Topic: Problem Statement – What are the issues in finding PGs?

Script (Presentation Story)

Thank you, Sujoy.

Now I will explain the Problem Statement – the real-life issues that we aimed to solve with this project.

As students, and even as interns or trainees, we often face a very common yet very frustrating problem: finding a room or PG when relocating to a new area.

Let's break it down.

First, the process is completely unorganized. People usually search for PGs on Facebook groups, Google Maps, posters pasted on walls, or by asking friends or locals. None of these sources are centralized or trustworthy.

Second, there is a serious lack of verified information. Some room listings are outdated, fake, or even scams. It's hard to know whether the room actually exists or whether the owner is genuine. Many people have lost money to fraud listings.

Third, there is no proper communication system. People find it awkward to call strangers, and even if they do, they don't have a clear idea of the room, facilities, or rent before visiting in person.

And lastly, this entire process is time-consuming and stressful, especially when someone has to shift cities on short notice – for example, when a student gets college admission or someone gets placed in a job.

So we saw this recurring pattern – a common problem with no structured solution.

That's where MessFinder comes in – a platform to organize this chaos, provide verified listings, images, real-time chat, and create a safe connection between room seekers and owners.

Now I'd like to invite Reshmi to talk about the goals we set while designing this solution.

Tips for Priti:

- Emphasize words like “unorganized,” “scams,” “lack of trust”
 - Speak like you’re telling a story – make it relatable
 - Nod or smile slightly when giving examples (Facebook, posters, etc.)
 - Don’t rush. Let the audience think with each problem
 - Transition smoothly: “That’s where MessFinder comes in...”

Likely Viva/Panel Questions for Priti:

Q: Can you give a real example of someone who faced this issue?

A: Yes, in our class, some of us had to shift during college, and we found PGs through friends or random posts – it took days and lots of asking around.

Q: What makes this a strong enough problem to solve?

A: Because it affects thousands of students and migrants every year – and there’s no one trusted platform to fix it at the local level.

Q: How common are scams in this area?

A: Very common – some websites charge fees upfront or post fake rooms just to collect data or fool users.
